What We Do

As the printing industry launched into the world of #SexyPrint with an incredible array of digital embellishment options, there was no doubt that printing would be changed forever.

Long gone were the days of boring old CMYK print.

Now was the time to usher in the era of metallic golds and silvers, shimmering varnish layers fused with fluorescent pinks, and captivating holographic effects. This was the stuff that would have made Matisse blush.

As incredible as the technology and its effects were, however, there were issues:

- Designers didn't know how to design for it.
- Estimators didn't know how to price it.
- Salespeople couldn't articulate the value to sell it.
- Most importantly, Printer's didn't how to profit from it.

Many printers today are severely underutilizing their embellishment presses capabilities and not building the kind of monthly volumes they were hoping for.

It's like only using a Ferrari to go grocery shopping on the weekends.

We at Taktiful know this battle full well, and understand what it takes to get those presses turning. We understand from the OEM perspective, we understand from the printer's perspective, we understand from the designer's perspective - and we understand from the agency's perspective. All of these profiles, and more, make up our team of experts.

We're here to help make your life easier.

We are obsessed with special effects and digital embellishments, and are in a position to help any and all rediscover the true market capabilities of their existing presses - and help new users monetize their new investment.

We connect people to brands using the science of touch and help digital embellishment users become more profitable designing, operating, selling and marketing touchable "sexy" print.
